Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 20-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The filed original specification does not provide support for an atmosphere in the furnace to have a hydrogen/oxygen gas ratio of from 2.1 to 2.5. The first full paragraph of page 20 of the specification does note the following:

In the method of oxygen-hydrogen flame method, it is preferable to make the mixture hydrogen excess condition compared with the theoretical chemical ratio, because the manufactured quartz glass temperature is maintained so that the quartz glass melting is improve. The atmosphere of the furnace becomes reduction condition so that the exhaustion of the furnace material by oxidation is prevented. Therefore Hydrogen gas/Oxygen gas ratio may be preferable within a range of 2.1 to 2.5, more preferable 2.2 to 2.4.

Art Unit: 1731

However, the ratio referred in the cited paragraph only refers to the ratio of hydrogen to oxygen being supplied to the burner flame. Neither the above paragraph nor its subsequent examples show, or imply an atmosphere of a furnace to have the claimed ratio. As best shown by production examples 1 and 2, the ratio of hydrogen gas to oxygen gas of 2.3 refers to the ratio of gases of the burner, the ratio of gasses being supplied to the burner, and not the atmosphere of the chamber as instantly claimed.
